Weighing in on the weather

Don't get pumped

► Tricks anyone can do to soften blow of high fuel prices

KYLE
REA
@METRONEWS.CA

With gas prices now hitting historic highs in the Forest City, the price at the pumps is putting a ding on people's wallets.

But it doesn't have to be that way, says Jay Stanford of the City of London's environmental programs department.

There are many simple and effective ways to save on gas that every driver can do to ensure fewer trips to the station.

Things as easy as making sure your tires are properly inflated, to turning off your idling car while waiting for a train, or dropping your speed limit slightly — are all fuel-saving measures.

For instance, people who travel 120 km/h on Highway 401 will burn considerably more fuel than someone traveling 100 km/h.

"Sure you'll get there a little bit early, but you've paid the price for doing so," Stanford said.

But there are even simpler ways to save a few Lauriers at the pumps. "Anytime ... that someone can walk, transit, cycle or carpool to work — these things become much more attractive as fuel prices go up."

The city itself offers a carpooling program, matching up carpoolers in the city: <https://london.carpoolzone.ca>.

Even cutting usage of a car by one day every two weeks, can save 10 to 15 per cent on fuel costs.

And of course there's a health benefit for those who walk or bike.

"We try to tell people you do them from a health perspective and a financial perspective," said Stanford. "Oh and at the same time, you're helping the environment."

Fuel for thought

Tips on how to save fuel from CAA:

- Avoid speeding up quickly or hard braking — it can save up to 20 per cent on gas
- Keep use of air conditioners to a minimum
- Close windows when travelling on the highway — it increases drag and drops fuel economy
- Take any excess weight out of the vehicle, such as roof racks, when not in use
- Use cruise control to keep your vehicle speed constant
- If you must idle your car for more than a minute, consider turning it off
- Buy a fuel-efficient car
- Regularly maintain your vehicle to keep it running smoothly

Tax break not the answer: Premier

► CAA predicts HST on fuel will provide province with $1.53B a year in new revenue ► CAA and Ontario Good Roads Association want portion dedicated to transportation infrastructure

Big oil companies that the Ontario government said would pass along HST savings to consumers in the form of lower prices would immediately raise prices if governments lower gasoline taxes, Premier Dalton McGuinty said yesterday.

McGuinty also insisted the HST was not the reason gas prices soared to more than $1.40 a litre in Toronto and to $1.50 in parts of northern Ontario.

"That's not what is driving the prices in Vancouver higher than ours, or the prices in Montreal higher than ours, or American gasoline prices higher than ours," McGuinty told reporters. The Liberal government sold the HST as a way to lower costs for businesses, who were supposed to pass along their tax savings to consumers by lowering prices.

A raft of studies show companies do eventually

"Any government that removes ... taxation from their gasoline (funds) that space ... filled in by the gasoline companies." PREMIER DALTON MCGUINTY pass along their HST savings, said Finance Minister Dwight Duncan, who like McGuinty, believes oil companies would hike prices to match any tax reductions.

Gearing up for a busy biking season

► This month London police are keeping a watchful eye as more cyclists take to the roads ► Under the Ontario Highway Traffic Act, bicycles are classified as vehicles and fines for violating the rules can be as high as $400

MARINA BRKLJACA
LONDON@METRONEWS.CA

With the summer weather fast approaching, London police are reminding those who pedal to get around that the rules of the road also apply to you.

Sgt. Tom O'Brien said with each season comes different traffic issues. And, for the month of May, cyclists are one of the top priorities.

"During the month of May, officers are asked to keep an extra eye on our cycling friends and deal with those who don't obey the rules of the road or keep their bike in good working order," said O'Brien.

Police will ticket cyclists who aren't stopping at red lights, not signaling, and ignoring other rules of the road that motorists follow.

Checkpoints

Brian Forcey, owner of Cyclepath of London, offers tips for bike maintenance:

- Make sure your brakes are working.
- To prevent a flat tire, check your tire pressure.
- Make sure your handle bars aren't loose. Loose handle bars make it difficult to steer.
- Check new bikes too! If you're purchasing a new bike from box stores sometimes bolts are loose.

But police will also be paying extra attention to drivers who crowd and cut off cyclists.

"We want to make

London roads safe," said O'Brien.

He added it's important to educate at the beginning of the season when cyclists are re-inflating their tires and greasing their chains.

And, with the temperatures finally on the rise, bike shops are busy tinkering away.

Brian Forcey, owner of Cyclepath of London, said with the nicer weather, bike repairs and sales are booming.

"Right now hybrids are really popular; they're a little more street friendly," he said.

"They have bigger wheels, so you can go a little bit faster. With the price of gas now as well, a lot of people are switching over to commuting on their bikes."

The Hobbit plays host to producer

Her husband wrote the original stage play adaptation of The Hobbit and she herself produced the play for four years.

So Vanessa Ford knows what she's talking about when it comes to stage performances of J.R.R. Tolkien's popular novel.

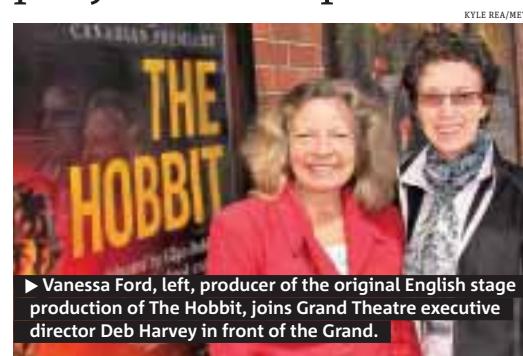

Last Friday, Ford attended opening night for The Grand Theatre's production of The Hobbit, which runs until May 26.

"It was extraordinary to hear Tolkien's words done in my husband's adaptation," she said.

In particular, Ford admired the look of the Grand's production, including the set, the look of the elves and dwarves, and special effects.

"It's been fantastic."

Fire bylaw reminder

Milder, drier weather is resulting in an upswing in the number of open fires violating a city bylaw.

"The open-air burning bylaw allows for safe and controlled recreational fires, such as cooking and campfires, not the burning of yard waste, which can be composted, taken to a drop-off site, or left curb-side on specific dates for collection," said deputy fire chief Dan Oldridge.

Sitting around a campfire is allowed between 4 p.m. and midnight, but only clean, dry seasoned firewood or commercially produced charcoal or briquettes can be burned. The fires must be small and kept in non-combustible containers, outdoor brick fireplaces, chimineas, metal tubs or fire pits. © KYLE REA

A man-made flood

► Intentional dike breach will save Manitoba homes, officials believe

@METRONEWS.CA

With their tidy Manitoba rural home surrounded by sandbags, Penny and Steve Wilson are locked in a worrisome holding pattern of wait-and-see.

Less than a kilometre away, on a road named Hoop and Holler Bend, provincial crews and heavy machines toil.

Helicopters swoop overhead, watching their progress.

Along that road, the flood fighters prepare to cut a hole in a dike holding back the swollen Assiniboine River. The move will intentionally swamp about 150 homes over a 250-square-kilometre area.

I hate to sound fatalistic, but Mother Nature will do what she wants. We'll just go on living."

STEVE WILSON

It's a drastic measure to relieve pressure on dikes that will save many homes, the province believes.

"We're talking hundreds of thousands of litres of water here," Penny Wilson said. "I don't know how they plan on controlling it or how well that's going to work."

Wilson said she's worried most about area farmers and greenhouses.

"They may lose everything," she said.

Mystery as Syria boots Canadian to Iran

A Canadian journalist arrested in Syria has been deported to Iran, says her employer.

But the Al-Jazeera news network and 39-year-old Dorothy Parvaz's family in British Columbia are anxiously awaiting any confirmation of her whereabouts.

Al-Jazeera said yesterday Parvaz has been deported from Syria to Iran, where she also has citizenship, and is now being held in Tehran.

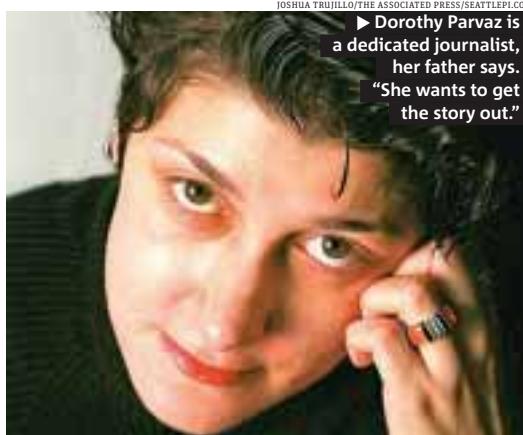

The Qatar-based broadcaster added: "We are calling for information from the Iranian authorities, access to Dorothy, and for her immediate release.

"We have had no contact with Dorothy since she left Doha on April 29 and we are deeply concerned for her welfare."

Parvaz's father, Fred, who lives in North Vancouver, said someone from Al-Jazeera contacted the family to tell them Syrian officials sent Dorothy to Iran but that has yet to be confirmed.

"My concern is her safety," said Fred Parvaz.

As long as she's safe and she's being treated with dignity, I'm OK with it, but I need some information ...

I need somebody to say, yes, we have Dorothy."

He said his daughter has an uncle in Tehran who could see her, if he's given the opportunity and "if she indeed is in Tehran."

Parvaz said it has been a "very intense, very stressful" time for the family.

Parvaz said he would travel to Iran if it's confirmed she is there.

Elusive MP meets the voters – at last

Elusive NDP rookie Ruth Ellen Brosseau yesterday finally visited the Quebec riding she'll represent in the House of Commons.

While she struggled a bit with the local language, she appeared to be making new friends.

"Everyone is very nice," Brosseau said in curt, passable French.

"I'm very excited."

Then, she added in English: "I'm very happy to be here."

Brosseau triumphed in the federal election despite living 300 kilometres away and working at a pub in Ontario.

She vacationed in Las Vegas during the election, had never set foot in her constituency, and supposedly didn't speak much French.

The perpetually smiling MP appeared to have won over a few people in Louiseville. One truck honked as it passed her on the main drag.

"She speaks French so well, it's surprising," said Louiseville mayor Guy Richard.

"I think we will have a very good MP."

Resident Daniel Ringuette said: "She has an accent but at least she speaks French."

DELIVERING THE GOODS

Canadian exports surge

Canada's trade surplus with the rest of the world almost doubled in March, suggesting the strong loonie may not be as much of a drag on exports as feared.

Statistics Canada said the value of Canadian exports outpaced imports by $627 million, up from a $356-million surplus in February.

In volume terms, Canadian exports have risen 12.4 per cent in the first three months of 2011, following a 16 per cent surge in the final quarter of last year, despite the persistent and growing strength in the loonie.

"The high-flying Canadian dollar doesn't appear to be dampening enthusiasm for Canadian exports," said economist Benjamin Reitzes of BMO Capital Markets. "Overall, the rebound in international trade is very encouraging."

The continuing growth of exports bodes well for the Canadian economy and suggests firms are still able to sell to the rest of the world in a high-loonie environment.

'We have a plan': Flaherty talks budget

► Eliminating debt is key to weathering future economic crises, Jim Flaherty says. His wide-ranging speech at the Washington Conference on the Americas touched on the federal budget, border security and the Alberta oilands.

Canada is on track to get the deficit under control once the federal budget is passed in June, Finance Minister Jim Flaherty told Republican lawmakers and a business audience in Washington, D.C.

Flaherty made his remarks yesterday before the Council of the Americas, an international business organization. Later, he met with Republican lawmakers on Capitol Hill.

"We have a plan to get back to balanced budget in Canada ... now that the extraordinary time of the recession has passed," Flaherty said, warning that the United States must bring its $14 trillion national debt under control to help prevent future global economic crises.

Swiss cheezed about Street View privacy

Google is threatening to wipe photographs of streets and houses in Switzerland from its online maps unless the country's Supreme Court overturns a ruling requiring an absolute guarantee of anonymity for people captured by the popular Street View service.

The ruling last month by the Federal Administrative Court in Bern ordered Google to obscure identifying features such as skin colour and clothing from people photographed in the vicinity of "sensitive establishments," such as women's shelters, prisons, schools, courts and hospitals.

The court was responding to a complaint filed by Switzerland's data protection commissioner, Hanspeter Thuer, after he determined that Google's automatic face-blurring software wasn't 100 per cent accurate.

Google claims the software has an accuracy rate of 99 per cent. But with some 212 million Street View images viewed in Switzerland since the launch of the service, the error margin runs in the millions.

► Riding high: Google Street View captures the Matterhorn in Zermatt, Switzerland, in a publicity drive this year.

During a court hearing in February, Thuer used a live version of Street View to demonstrate examples where the software failed to obscure faces of adults and children in public — including outside the court — and even inside private homes. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Public exposure

- If Google goes through with its threat, it would be the first time the company has permanently switched off Street View.
- Last year, it bowed to demands in Germany for users to be able to blur entire houses. In March Google was fined $136,400 in France because its cars illegally collected personal data from Wi-Fi networks. The company apologized.

Addiction not a factor in tobacco profits?

Cigarettes are harmful and addictive, but it is not that hard to quit smoking, the head of cigarette maker Philip Morris told a cancer nurse yesterday.

CEO Louis C. Camilleri made the statement at a shareholder meeting in New York, after a California nurse rose and said a patient had told her that of all the addictions he's beaten — crack, cocaine, meth — cigarettes have been the most difficult.

Camilleri, a longtime smoker, retorted: "I don't think we get enough recognition for the efforts we make to ensure that there is effective regulation of a product that is harmful and that is addictive. Nevertheless ... it is not that hard to quit. There are more previous smokers in America today than current smokers."

Analyst Philip Gorham countered that addictiveness is why tobacco is such a profitable business.

Toyota grapples with losses

Toyota's quarterly profit crumpled more than 75 per cent after the March earthquake and tsunami wiped out parts suppliers in northeastern Japan, and it is expected to lose its spot as the world's top-selling automaker to General Motors Co. this year.

By the end of May, the crisis will have cost Toyota production of 550,000 vehicles in Japan, and another 350,000 overseas. Production is back at about 50 per cent, but the company said it expects it to start picking up to 70 per cent of pre-disaster levels in July.

JUMPIN' FUEL PRICES: IT'S NOT A GAS, GAS, GAS

HE SAYS ...

JOHN MAZEROLLE

METRO

When gas prices rise, us media types say motorists "got a shock at the pumps," which is silly.

A shock would be if prices plummeted, or if I noticed the Old Spice guy in the next car. On the surprise meter, rising gas prices is between violence in the Middle East and Lindsay Lohan falling off the wagon.

Gas prices rise every summer. They have already skyrocketed in central Canada, and if the rest of you think you're immune I've got a used SUV for sale. Not only can I guarantee you at least one headline in your local paper that says, "Motorists steamed over gas prices" based on a scientific survey of three people filling up, but I'm pretty sure this year we'll finally see the story, "Full gas tank to become status symbol."

Gas prices provoke a lot of questions from motorists ("Are you @#%$~ kidding me?") but as a journalist who has covered this story every year for a decade, I have all the answers.

Q: Why are gas prices so high?

A: Gas prices rise whenever there is a change in the "world situation." When the world stops changing its situation, gas prices will stop rising.

Q: Where does the money go?

A: It's important to realize that only a small percentage of the money you pay goes toward gas. A breakdown:

- 33 per cent: Solar-Powered Car Company assassination fund
- 33 per cent: The middleman
- 33 per cent: Taxes used to investigate and regulate gas prices

That leaves one per cent for the oil companies, which is why they need government help to stay afloat. Check the web to see where you can donate.

Q: What role does speculation play?

A: It's important. For instance, speculators might note that the Atlantic contains a lot of moisture, which could eventually form a low-pressure system that could strike Barack Obama with a bolt of lightning, causing Iran to strike in America's moment of weakness. If speculators were to imagine this scenario, they would have no choice but to force gas prices higher until the end of the imaginary war.

Q: What are the long-term effects of price increases?

A: Young drivers with large vehicles are looking at the legacy their parents have left them and coming to the same conclusion: No kids, ever.

As you can see, not much can be done about gas prices. That might seem glib, but I'm actually bringing journalistic objectivity to bear: I've never owned a car. I can talk the talk because I walk the walk, whether I want to or not.

Worth mentioning

TORONTO. A survey suggests Canadian web users may not want to pay for news, but they still trust content from the mainstream media over other sources.

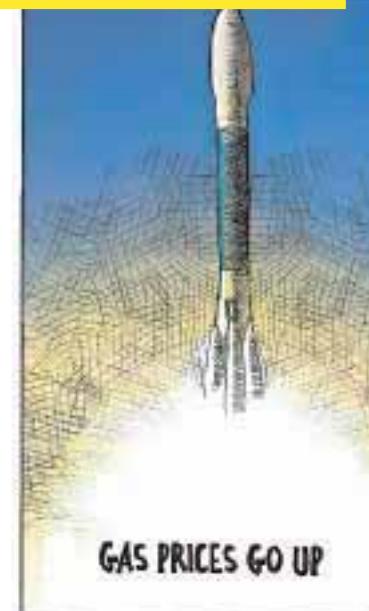

The latest report from the Canadian Media Research Consortium states that about 90 per cent of wired Canadians consider the information they get from newspapers, television, radio and online news sites to be reliable. The percentages were a few points lower among those aged 18 to 34.

Only 26 per cent believed information from social networks is reliable — although the trust rating jumped to 40 per cent among daily social media users — and 65 per cent said they thought news from family and friends was reliable.

When it comes to citizen journalism, news published online by non-professionals, most believed it was best left to traditional reporters. Only 20 per cent believed citizen journalism could provide regular coverage of government, 21 per cent believed it could expose abuses of power and 23 per cent believed it could provide analysis of important events.

Mayor McCheese return address gave it away

If you get a letter from Britain's No. 10 Downing Street, don't bother with a personalized response. The person who signed it probably used a fake name.

Downing Street says that, for years, staff at the British prime minister's

It says that use of pseudonyms was introduced in 2005, after an official was tracked down by a constituent she had been in contact with and threatened at her home address.

But the practice didn't come to light until yesterday, when the country's Channel 4 News exposed one such official as being imaginary. Downing Street said it was now looking in to an alternative to using pseudonyms in its letters to the public.

Start of a new chapter

► Alex Ernewein will celebrate the release of his first full-length album on Friday

BACKSTAGE PASS

AMANDA GRANT
METRO LONDON

At age 13, Alex Ernewein was a touring musician.

He played shows across Ontario as a jazz pianist and by 15 had a regular gig at Maggie's Supper and Jazz Club downtown.

Now 17, Ernewein still performs at Maggie's every Tuesday night, but Friday will mark the start of a new chapter in the young — though widely-experienced — musician's life.

On Friday (the 13th) Ernewein will be joined by friends and family to celebrate the release of his first full-length album at Chaucer's Pub.

"I kind of like doing all those unlucky things," Ernewein says, "like walking under a ladder on purpose. Friday the 13ths are always good days for me."

The album is a departure from his jazz roots, taking on a folk-pop feel with Ernewein playing everything from piano to banjo to timpani.

"We recorded all over, we went to a farm, we went to my high school and recorded some timpani and vibraphone and we went to Aeolian Hall and recorded there with the gorgeous piano," Ernewein says.

Mostly self-taught, he says his background in jazz theory helped him understand the complexity of music, then simplify it, resulting in, what he calls "a listenable album."

"He has a lot of ideas," says Simon Larochette, a London-based recording engineer and producer responsible for many of the local releases produced in the last year.

"Often we'd be recording on location and have a short amount of time and that's when his professionalism and musical skill shone through."

On Friday Ernewein, who typically performs solo favouring a loop pedal to fill out his sound, will play with his brother Joe, as well as a violinist and drummer.

The downtown venue will be packed, with doors opening at 8 p.m.

Local favourites Olenka and the Autumn Lovers will start the show.

"Everything is done," Ernewein says. "I'm getting the CDs today, all the recordings done, all the instrumentations done. Now all I have to do is play my music ... so am I nervous? No — not at all."

Urban art show opening

On Saturday Artfusion will celebrate the opening of its 16th urban art exhibit at Citi Plaza.

The event is a fusion of street art and hip-hop culture, featuring work from local graffiti artists and DJs.

Artfusion was started by Ryan Mahy as a pop-up art show and draws a diverse crowd of young and old to its downtown location.

Local Music Fundraiser

Also on Saturday, the London-Middlesex Civitan Club will host its second annual Music Fest Fundraiser benefiting the mentally and physically handicapped community in London.

The evening will feature musical performances from James Hummel, Panic on Pluto and Blind Luck at the London Music Club on Colborne Street.

Lady Gaga is turning to an unusual method to cultivate her fan base: The pop icon is releasing songs from her new album on a section of the popular online game FarmVille before they can be heard anywhere else.

The singer, known for her outrageous styles will allow singles from Born This Way (due out May 23) to be heard within a specially-created farm, called GagaVille, in the game. Players will have to complete tasks to hear one exclusive new track per day

streamed online from May 17 to 19. Starting on May 20, players will be also able to unlock additional songs that aren't exclusive.

FarmVille is one of the most popular games on Facebook, played by about 46 million people worldwide and makes money by players buying game pieces. The parties wouldn't disclose any financial terms, or even comment on whether money was being exchanged.

► Beastie Boys releasing new album as Adam Yauch deals with cancer

It's been 25 years since the Beastie Boys released Ill and proved three bratty Jewish guys from New York could deliver hip-hop as deliciously as Run-D.M.C. Despite grey hair for Adam "Ad-Rock" Horowitz, fatherhood for Michael "Mike D" Diamond and cancer for Adam "MCA" Yauch, the group is as goofy as ever, as evidenced by the old-school flavour on their new album, Hot Sauce Committee Part Two.

Yauch, who discovered he had cancer of the salivary gland in 2009, is notably absent. He's still undergoing treatment.

"It's hard that he's not here, but it'd be harder for him to be here," Diamond says.

Yauch's condition has put the tight-knit group's near future in limbo.

"It is what is," Horowitz says. "You deal with it. He's getting treatment. That's the most important thing. We've been friends since 1980. All of this doesn't matter. If we go on tour, we go on tour. If don't go, we don't go. We'll figure it out. Yauch getting better is the most important thing right now."

The Beastie Boys' first lyrical effort in seven years

— 2007's The Mix Up was an instrumental affair — is a return to the group's signature roots of uncomplicated beats and clever rhymes.

Going out with a bang

- General Hospital leading the way with 21 Daytime Emmy nominations
- Philbin seeking winning exit from show that has never won an Emmy

Regis Philbin and ABC's exciting soap operas have multiple opportunities to go out as winners at the Daytime Emmy Awards.

All My Children earned 13 Emmy nods and One Life to Live had 12, in nominations announced yesterday for the June 19 awards show.

ABC has cancelled the durable soap operas, each on the air for more than 40 years, and their final episodes will be in the coming months.

Philbin has said that later this year he is leaving the talk show built around him, first with co-host Kathie Lee Gifford and now with Kelly Ripa.

His show has never won a Daytime Emmy for best talk show.

Philbin was nominated for best talk-show host, an award he shared once a decade ago with Rosie O'Donnell.

He also won a Daytime Emmy for best game show host when Who Wants to Be a Millionaire was at its apex.

General Hospital led the way with 21 Daytime Emmy nominations, followed by The Young and the Restless with 20 and Sesame Street with 16.

The awards will be distributed at the Las Vegas Hilton, televised by CBS.

All My Children was nominated for best daytime drama, along with General Hospital, The Young and the Restless and The Bold and the Beautiful.

Two All My Children cast members, Alicia Minshew and Debbi Morgan, were nominated for best actress in a daytime drama. Other nominees were Colleen Zenk of As the World Turns, James Scott of Days of Our Lives, Maurice Benard of General Hospital and Christian Le Blanc of The Young and the Restless.

The National Academy of Television Arts & Sciences said it was giving lifetime achievement awards to game show hosts Alex Trebek of Jeopardy! and Pat Sajak of Wheel of Fortune, syndicated TV's two most dominant game shows. Neither man was nominated for best game show host this year, although both entered the competition. Instead, Ben Bailey of Discovery's Cash Cab has the chance for a second straight win in the category. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

De Niro leads Cannes jury

Seeing, and judging, 20 movies in just over 10 days is not everyone's idea of a holiday. But not everyone is Robert De Niro.

The Academy Award-winning actor is heading this year's Cannes Film Festival judging panel — and said yesterday he's looking forward to the break from his usual routine.

"It's a bit of a vacation," said De Niro, who also has directed two features and is co-founder of New York's Tribeca Film Festival. "I can focus on the films and not have the distractions I normally would have in my everyday life."

De Niro — famously a man of few words in interviews and press conferences — said he had no firm guidelines to offer his fellow judges, who include actors Jude Law and Uma Thurman, Norwegian critic and writer Linn Ullmann and directors Olivier Assayas of France and Johnny To of Hong Kong.

Before the 64th Cannes film festival ends on May 22, they will pick a winner of the Palme d'Or, the festival's top trophy, from 20 films. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Career clock not yet at midnight

► Cannes audiences believe in Woody Allen, even if the director doubts himself ► Speaks about his career

Woody Allen might have occasional doubts about his talent, but his adoring fans at Cannes don't.

Widely regarded as the most European of American directors, Allen has consistently garnered warm receptions for his films at the French Riviera cinema showcase — even when they get panned at home.

His latest offering, Midnight in Paris, which opened the 12-day-long Cannes Film Festival on yesterday, looked like an immediate success. A clever and entertaining tale starring Owen Wilson as a Hollywood screenwriter who pines for the Paris of the 1920s, the movie is also a cinematic homage to the City of Light. As expected, the crowd at its first press screening tittered throughout and broke into enthusiastic applause at the end.

Still, Allen sounded a typically self-effacing note at a post-film news conference.

"I've never considered myself an artist," he told journalists. "I've aspired to be an artist, but I never had the depth or the substance or the gift to be an artist."

"If you think that Kurosawa was an artist, and Bergman was an artist and Bunuel was an artist and Fellini, then it's clear as a bell that I'm not an artist," he said, referring to cinema auteurs Akira Kurosawa, Ingmar Bergman, Luis Bunuel and Federico Fellini.

"Still," he added, "I can make films and some of them come out good and some of them come out better and some of them come out worse."

Midnight in Paris is Allen's 41st feature film — his 11th at Cannes — and the New York-born director chalked his exceptional career up to chance.

"I've had nothing but good luck," he said.

After filming in New York for decades, Allen shifted to Europe, shooting four of his last movies in London and Barcelona. Midnight is his first set in Paris, a city he said he'd grown up watching in French films.

"I wanted to show the city emotionally, the way I felt about it," Allen said. "It didn't matter to me how real it was or what it reflected. I just wanted it to be the way I saw Paris. Paris through my eyes."

"I just spoke to Maria an hour ago before I came here. We both were saying the same thing — we're extremely blessed to be surrounded by so many wonderful people, by so many wonderful friends."

Shriver has reportedly been living at the Beverly Hills hotel for months and stopped wearing her wedding ring in March, while Schwarzenegger was spotted biking with his son Tuesday sans ring. ● METRO

► Fashion is increasingly blurring the lines between women's and men's wear. But in real-life the sexes are still divided when it comes to what looks good on whom

 KENYA HUNT
STYLE@METRONEWS.CA
METRO WORLD NEWS IN LONDON

It's hard to pinpoint exactly when the gender-bending undercurrent began to flow through fashion. Whether it's Coco Chanel lounging around in men's pyjamas or Yves Saint Laurent designing his famous Le Smoking tuxedo for women, manly looks on women have never really gone out of style.

But in the past two years, androgyny has become increasingly trendy. Just when you think it's about to die down, it surges back up again, starting with the boyfriend jacket and jeans phenomenon that swept 2008 and moving on through to fashion's current obsession with suiting and tailoring. Meanwhile, H&M has gone unisex for its new Fashion Against AIDS collection, which hit stores last week, and CK One now includes jeans and underwear for both men and women. On the high fashion front, designer Rad Hourani continues to earn buzz — and critical acclaim — for his genderless collection of separates.

Factor in the fact that designers are increasingly showing more continuity between their men's and women's collections with some looks practically mirroring each other and you have a full-on moment.

But are the personal style sensibilities of women and men really merging off the runway? Ask any woman what her boyfriend prefers to see her in, and nine times out of 10, she'll say a t-shirt and jeans, not the elaborate looks she's bookmarked on her favourite street style blogs.

Giving your home that good old country feel

► Country decor need not be just adding some lace and funny wallpaper ► There are many simple and easy ways to get that country feel that is both casual and chic ► Cleaner lines, neutral colours are the way to go

DESIGN CENTRE

KARL LOHNES
HOME@
METRONEWS.CA

Although the most popular style of decorating, country decor has gotten a bit of a bad rap over the past 20 years. The frilly looks of lace curtains, duck or cow wallpaper borders and the pickled-pine furniture may have been over-used just a wee bit.

There's a new country trend emerging. It's a cleaner-lined no-fuss style that offers a calm and relaxing atmosphere appealing to those that want a casual, yet chic place to live. The colours are updated neutrals like grey, white and taupe with pops of strong colour for sharp surprises. Here's how to get the look.

Flooring

Keep floors dramatic with light or dark options. Painting old wooden ► Country decor has gotten a bad rap over the years, but new trends and ideas are giving new life to country style.

floors is a great way to get a bright clean look. Choose a high-gloss white or pale grey paint colour for a smooth, shiny surface that almost looks like plastic.

The lighter the colour the more light you will bounce around your space making it feel brighter.

If carpeting is your thing then have fun with inexpensive carpet tiles and create a modern checkerboard with carpet squares; a great option for a family room or child's play area that is attractive and eco-friendly.

Paint colours

White, pale grey and soft blue are great colours to keep a room feeling bright and fresh. Consider painting one wall in the room a punchy or dramatic colour to draw attention to the room's focal point such as behind a headboard in a bedroom or the television in the living area.

Furniture styles

There are two extreme looks that seem to complement each other quite well for the country look. Ornate and fancy traditional furniture that is simplified by a dramatic stain or paint colour, and then an elle-natural wood finish with a soft grey patina. Painting an old colonial china cabinet with a bright, glossy coral red will add punch to the room and make an old furniture piece look hip again.

wall sconces will add a raw country style to a room.

For a natural look, simply have an old piece of furniture sanded down to the natural wood and then wax it to a soft polish. You'll take an ornate furniture piece and give it a more casual feel.

Lighting

Industrial or outdoor style lighting like hanging barn pendants and gooseneck

You can now find reproductions to help cast an edginess of light to your space at places like Home Depot and other large home stores. Just visit the outdoor lighting section rather than the indoor section. These lamps will add a industrial charm to your space.

If you love patio season, than you have to get an outdoor heating unit

► Canadians only get so many days nice enough to enjoy time on a patio ► So why not try and extend that season for as long as possible with a heater, there are plenty of options out there

As Canadians, we look forward to patio season and whether we're grilling, entertaining or kicking back in a lounge chair, the season is never long enough.

By introducing outdoor heating you can extend the use of your deck, patio or dining area to include spring, summer and fall.

No wonder patio heaters have become a must-have accessory in many backyards. Available in a number of forms, there is a patio heater for almost any outdoor space, large or small:

Stand it

Appropriate for a deck or patio with a larger sitting area, free-standing units spread warmth evenly to a broader area. Available in a variety of finishes, free-standing heaters come in both natural gas and propane formats.

Move it

Lightweight and portable, table-top heaters can be moved from table to sitting area. Look for safety features such as an automatic shut off, tip over protection system and safety grill guard.

Hang it

Enjoy evenings in your gazebo or pergola with the addition of a hanging heater. Look for one that uses infrared technology to ensure it is not affected by the wind.

In addition to offering warmth on cool evenings, it also provides beautiful ambient lighting. Many gazebos and pergolas come with a hanging hook, making installation a breeze.

Come on baby light my garden

► HGTV's Jamie Durie gives his suggestions for bringing mood lighting into your outdoor space for every taste

Few things are prettier in a night garden than soft pools of light illuminating interesting trees, accent rocks and plants, or pathways.

Whether on a small terrace or in a sweeping landscape, lighting creates a welcoming and often dramatic atmosphere.

But in some cases, buried-wire electric lighting can be costly and impracticable. The answer might be solar lighting.

The technology of solar lighting has been refined in recent years to include new batteries that take and hold a charge better — typically 1,000 nights per unit. LED bulbs, too, have become more efficient. They can stay outside in any weather, and are available in various watts and colours.

Jamie Durie, author and host of HGTV's The Outdoor Room, suggests three ways to use solar lighting:

"First, light your perimeter. It gives some perspective, and is a creative way to show the boundaries of your property," Durie says. "Next, mark out your walks and pathways. Lastly, feature trees and other features with up-lighting, or even by attaching solar lights to walls and fences."

Durie's not a fan of "clinical" white LEDs, preferring those with amber light. Make sure when buying solar lights that they're all the same tone. And for areas where you want greater intensity, look for lights with more than two and preferably four LEDs in them.

In his projects, Durie of-and Home Depot carry mini lights in copper, stainless or black finishes that can be placed in the ground or in any plant container. Look for coach and Craftsman-style lamps sold in multiples at both retailers. Target's solar lamppost in a planter box is an attractive option.

The key, of course, is to position your lights for maximum sun exposure. Some lights have a separate photocell that can be placed a distance from the actual bulb component or string, so even a shady-area tree can be lit up.

Solar string lights look pretty illuminating trees around a patio or pool, or entwining a step railing. Plow & Hearth has a line of light bulb-shaped ones, cool for a hipster's outdoor space. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The pressing matter of a bench

One of Karen Angelucci's an author of gardening books, says you need a place to work and create. Potting benches are perfect for the job.

Here are some things to consider:

LOCATION

Put the bench in a shady spot so you're not working in direct sun, experts recommend. Consider whether to incorporate the bench into the landscape or hide it.

SIZE

Think about what size plants and pots you will be using, and how much workspace you will need.

HEIGHT

Make sure the work area is at a comfortable level. You don't want to have to bend down or reach up.

STORAGE

Some benches come with shelves, drawers or utensil hooks for storing gardening tools.

MATERIAL

Pick a material suited to your climate. Many benches are made from cedar or redwood, which can withstand the elements well.

WHEELS

Some benches have wheels so they can be moved around the yard. If you intend to roll yours around the lawn, make sure it isn't too heavy to push.

COST

Prices vary widely. A do-it-yourself bench could be constructed for as little as $30. A number of gardening websites offer plans for building potting benches. Store-bought benches start at around $100.

► Karen Angelucci's potting bench at her home.

APPEARANCE

If the bench will be visible from a patio, deck or house window, you will need to consider whether it blends with the look of your house or yard.

ACCESSORIES

Potting benches can be outfitted with many kinds of equipment. Some have sinks that can be rigged to outdoor spigots. Others have leaves or shelves that can be folded out to create extra workspace. Some come with boxes to store soil or catch it while you work. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Huge comebacks now not so rare

 MATTHEW WUEST
@METRONEWS.CA

The Philadelphia Flyers, Chicago Blackhawks and now the Detroit Red Wings have shed new light on NHL playoff comebacks that once seemed impossible.

After 35 years and 112 consecutive series without a comeback from a 3-0 deficit, the Red Wings have become the third team in the past 12 months to be in that position and force a Game 7. The deciding game is tonight against the San Jose Sharks.

"The more comebacks that happen, the more teams believe, 'Hey, we can do this and it's possible,'" said Tampa Bay Lightning general manager Steve Yzerman.

The Flyers did it last May, knocking off the Boston Bruins after trailing 3-0, just the third comeback victory of its kind.

The Blackhawks almost did the same this year, battling back against the Vancouver Canucks, only to fall short in Game 7.

The Red Wings-Sharks series has been tied or separated by a single goal for 336 out of 376 total minutes, or 90 per cent of the series.

"The games are so close," Yzerman said. "Every single game is one goal and it can go either way."

Too close to call

► Sharks hope to avoid adding historic collapse to playoff woes

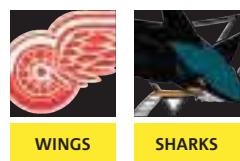

Depending on how the numbers are crunched, a compelling case can be made that the Detroit Red Wings and San Jose Sharks both have the edge going into their improbable Game 7.

In a playoff season full of overtimes, one-goal games and road wins, this one truly is a toss-up.

The Wings can take solace in Chicago taking Presidents' Trophy-winning Vancouver to the brink in the first round. But the Blackhawks fell short in overtime of Game 7 after winning three straight.

Ah yes, overtime.

There have been lots of those in this year's playoffs — 20 in the first 69 games. Here is where you can add a check mark in the Sharks' column. San Jose is 5-0 in overtime in this post-season, including two wins against Detroit as it built what seemed to be an insurmountable lead.

► Time: 9 p.m.
Channel: TSN, RDS

"They're having a good run," Red Wings forward Henrik Zetterberg said of the Sharks. "Once you start winning a few games in overtime, you start believing in yourself."

Between 1976 and 2010, of the 112 series in which a team led 3-0 none needed a Game 7. There have been 167 leads of 3-0, with only 1.8 per cent of teams blowing them.

Only the 2004 Boston Red Sox have done it in baseball history. No NBA team has pulled off the feat.

- ♈ Aries March 21-April 20 Use your energy to finish tasks you started but allowed to drift.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 You must try not to force people to do things against their will. It will work against you.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 If you want to get somewhere worth going, rely on someone who knows the way.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 Not everyone is as honest as you. You need to keep that fact in mind at all times today.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 23 Someone in a position of authority will make you a great offer today.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24-Sept. 22 Now is the time to stop dreaming and start doing. Go for it.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23 Jealousy will rear its ugly head today. You could find yourself saying things you don't mean.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 The odds are high that you will fall out with someone you have feelings for today. The pressure has been building.

Sudoku

How to play

Fill in the grid, so that every row, every column and every 3x3 box contains the digits 1-9. There is no math involved. You solve the puzzle with reasoning and logic.
